1. Labels in the GE line

Personal indexes for verbal affixes and pronouns:

- 1 1st person
- 2 2nd person
- 3 3rd person

[MA] \mb ana ya: = n-mʃi
\ge 1SG FUT = 1SG-go\IPFV
\rx PRO.IDP TAM = PNG-V
\ft I will go

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_05_002_SP1_001
\mb we:n wʃəl-na ħna
\ge where arrive\PFV-1PL 1PL
\rx ADV.Q V-PNG PRO
\ft Until where have we been (recording)?

ACT Active, used for participles PTCP to distinguish active ACT from passive PASS:

[MA] \mb ga:ləs
\ge sit_down\PTCP.ACT.SG.M
\rx VN
\ft I/you/he (masc.) is sitting down

¹ The full Grammatical Sketch will be uploaded shortly.

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_04_076
\mb wa:ləf-a
\ge burn\PTCP.ACT-F
\rx VN-PNG

CS Construct state. It is one way to express possession or close relation, also called the synthetic construction, as opposed to the analytic construction with a possessive particle. It is marked only when there is morphological evidence (feminine nouns and numerals):

[MA] \mb xdəm-t=i
\ge work-F\CS=POSS.1SG
\rx N-PNG=PRO.PNG
\ft my work

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_04_195
\mb xu:d ra:h-t=k
\ge take\IMP[2SG.M] rest-F\CS=OBL.2SG
\rx V N-PNG=PRO.PNG
\ft Relax yourself

DEF Definite article:

[MA] \mb əd = dərb
\ge DEF = street
\rx DET = N
\ft the street

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_06_221
\mb əl = qəṣṣ-a
\ge DEF = story-F
\rx DET = N-PNG
\ft The story

DEM Demonstratives. In Moroccan Arabic, determiners are glossed in \ge line. Near and far deixis are also distinguished DEM.PROX and DEM.DIST:

[MA] \mb ha:d = əl = yu:l
 \ge DEM.PROX = DEF = ogre
 \rx DET = DET = N.M
 \ft this ogre

DIM Diminutive (for nouns and adjectives).

[MA] \mb wli:d = i
 \ge boy\DIM = POSS.1SG
 \rx N = PRO.PNG
 \ft my little boy

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_06_142
 \mb əl = bne:j-a əl = sye:jr-a
 \ge DEF = girl\DIM-F DEF = small\DIM-F
 \rx DET = N-PNG DET = ADJ-PNG
 \ft The small girl

DIST Distal for demonstratives, as opposed to the proximal PROX. For demonstrative pronouns, near and far deixis are glossed as PROX and DIST respectively, plus gender and number information in the \ge tier:

| | | | |
|----------|---------------|---------------|----------------|
| [MA] \mb | ha:da:k | ha:di:k | ha:du:k |
| \ge | DIST.M | DIST.F | DIST.PL |
| \rx | PRO.DEM | PRO.DEM | PRO.DEM |
| \ft | that | that | those |

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_07_051
 \mb ha:di:ka əl = mme:j-a
 \ge DIST.F DEF = water\DIM -F
 \rx DEM DET = N-PNG
 \ft That water

DU Contrary to Tripoli Arabic where dual is commonly used (only with nouns and the agreement is in plural), dual is a more archaic construction in Moroccan Arabic since it only remains in set constructions for body parts or certain units of measures (time, pounds, inches etc.). The standard tag is used on the \ge tier:

[MA] \mb jawm-a:jn
 \ge day-DU
 \rx N.M-PNG
 \ft two days

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_07_100
 \mb mo:z-t-en
 \ge banana-F\CS-DU
 \rx N-PNG-PNG
 \ft Two bananas

EXS Existential, used in Tripoli Arabic for the preposition fī when it is used as an existential copula, always associated with COP:

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_01_5
 \mb fī i:ʔa:lja ma fī=ʃ ba:zi:n
 \ge in Italy NEG1 EXS=NEG2 barley_flour_gruel
 \rx PREP N.PR PTCL.NEG COP.EXS=PTCL.NEG N.M
 \ft In Italy, there is no barley flour gruel

F Feminine (for nouns, adjectives, verbo-nominals and affixes). In Moroccan Arabic, for non-overt marking feminines, the gloss F is provided in rx line, for example bənt > N.F.

[MA] \mb ʔa:ʒ-a
 \ge thing-F
 \rx N-PNG
 \ft thing

[MA] \mb qtəl = ha
 \ge kill\PFV = OBL.3SG.F
 \rx V = PRO.PNG

 \ge 1-take\IPFV-PL in = thing-F light-F
 \rx PNG-V-PNG PREP = N-PNG ADJ-PNG
 \ft We take something light

FUT Future particle, in its full form ya:di, or in its reduced form, ya:= (and other variants, for example ma:ʃi, ʃa:di) in Moroccan Arabic, whereas Tripoli Arabic has the preverbs b = and ʔa: =:

[MA] \mb a:na ya: = n-mʃi
 \ge 1SG FUT = 1SG-go\IPFV
 \rx PRO.IDP TAM = PNG.V
 \ft I will go

[MA] \mb ʕa:di ma t-ʒbər-u = ʃi
 \ge FUT NEG 2-find\IPFV-PL = NEG

 \mb b = n-ħəʃʃəm ru:ħ = i b = n-ʔləʕ
 \ge FUT = 1-shame\IPFV soul = POSS.1SG FUT = 1-go_out\IPFV
 \rx TAM = PNG-V.DER2 N.F = PRO.PNG TAM = PNG-V
 \ft I will be ashamed I will leave

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_05_SP1_076
 \mb ħa: = n-tkəlləm-u ʕla wəʃt əl = bla:d
 \ge FUT = 1-speak\IPFV-PL on middle DEF = country
 \rx TAM = PNG-V.DER5-PNG PREP N.M DET = N.M
 \ft We will talk about the city center

IMP Imperative (for second persons; see also EXHORT):

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_04_143
 \mb ʔudd ba:l = k
 \ge keep\IMP[2SG.M] mind = OBL.2SG
 \rx V N.M = PRO.PNG
 \ft Be careful

INDF Indefinite; this is mostly used in nominal determination in Moroccan Arabic:

- INDF1 The indefinite article based on the numeral wa:ħəd (one):

[MA] \mb wa:ħəd = əl = bənt
 \ge INDF1 = DEF = girl
 \rx DET = DET = N.F
 \ft a girl

- INDF2 The other indefinite article ʃi, derived from a word meaning “thing”:

[MA] \mb ʃi ħa:ʒ-a
 \ge INDF2 thing-F
 \rx DET N-PNG
 \ft something

IPFV For imperfective aspect:

[MA] \mb j-ʕa:rwən-u = ni
\ge 3-help\IPFV-PL = OBJ.1SG
\rx PNG-V.DER3-PNG = PRO.PNG
\ft They will help me

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_03_256
\mb n-axəd-u f = ha:ʒ-a xfi:f-a
\ge 1-take\IPFV-PL in = thing-F light-F
\rx PNG-V-PNG PREP = N-PNG ADJ-PNG
\ft We take (have / eat) something light

M Masculine (for nouns, affixes, clitics, pronouns and verbs):

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_05_SP1_076
\mb ha: = n-tkəlləm-u ʕla wəʃt əl = bla:d
\ge FUT = 1-speak\IPFV-PL on middle DEF = country
\rx TAM = PNG-V.DER5-PNG PREP N DET = N.M
\ft We will talk about the city center

NEG For Moroccan Arabic, verbal negation (and also with pseudo-verbs), is expressed by a particle and a clitic on both sides of the predicate: respectively negative particles are ma and f(i). See also CL:

[MA] \mb ma t-ʒbər-u = ʃi
\ge NEG 2-find\IPFV-PL = NEG
\rx PTCL PNG-V-PNG = CL
\ft You won't find it

In Tripoli Arabic, NEG is used for the negation ma when this latter is not associated to the second element of the discontinuous negation NEG2 = f, for instance as the first element of negations meaning ma ... hədd “nobody”, ma ʕəmr “never” (see AYL_CP_NARR_05_SP1_178), ma ... fej “nothing” (see below), etc.:

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_05_SP1_024
\mb ma n-ʕəf fej fi əl = madi:n-a əl = qadi:m-a
\ge NEG 1-know\IPFV thing in DEF = city-F DEF = old-F
\rx PTCL.NEG PNG-V N.M PREP DET = N-PNG DET = ADJ-PNG
\ft I don't know anything about the old city

Contrary to Moroccan Arabic, the distinction is made in Tripoli Arabic between the two elements of the discontinuous negation and the second element =f is the only one to be considered as a clitic. For this reason I have decided to label them as NEG1 and NEG2 respectively. This discontinuous negation is mainly used as a verbal negation:

```
[TA] \ref  AYL_CP_NARR_04_057
      \mb  ma          n-ħəbb-u = h = f
      \ge  NEG1       1-love\IPFV-PL = OBL.3SG.M = NEG2
      \rx  PTCL.NEG   PNG-V-PNG = PRO.PNG = PTCL.NEG
```

Moreover, the discontinuous negation also allows to negate:

- the preposition fi used as an existential copula COP.EXS:

```
[TA] \ref  AYL_CP_NARR_01_5
      \mb  fi  i:ʔa:lja  ma  fi = f  ba:zi:n
      \ge  in  Italy     NEG1  EXS = NEG2  barley_flour_gruel
      \rx  PREP N.PR    PTCL.NEG COP.EXS = PTCL.NEG  N.M
      \ft  In Italy, there is no barley flour gruel
```

- the preposition ʕənd “at” used to express possession:

```
[TA] \mb  ma          ʕənd = h = f  flu:s
      \ge  NEG1       at = OBL.3SG.M = NEG2  money\PL
      \rx  PTCL.NEG   PREP = PRO.PNG = PTCL.NEG  N
      \ft  He hasn't got money
```

- independent pronouns of the 3rd person only:

```
[TA] \ref  AYL_CP_NARR_05_SP1_227
      \mb  ma          humma = f  ə
      \ge  NEG1       3PL = NEG2  ə
      \rx  PTCL.NEG   PRO = PTCL.NEG  HESIT
      \ft  They are not er
```

NEG.CONT The nominal negation is expressed by a continuous negative particle ma:ʕi: in Moroccan Arabic and by məʕ or muf in Tripoli Arabic:

```
[MA] \mb  ma:ʕi  a:na
      \ge  NEG.CONT 1SG
      \rx  PTCL
      \ft  It's not me!
```

In Tripoli Arabic məʃ or muf are used as negations in non-verbal utterances and they also allow to negate an entire utterance (predicative relation) if they are situated at the beginning of it:

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_05_SP1_180
 \mb əl = flu:s məʃ taqji:m əl = bna:dəm
 \ge DEF = money\PL NEG.CONT evaluation DEF = human_being
 \rx DET = N PTCL N.M DET = N.M
 \ft The money is not a way to evaluate a human being

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_04_092
 \mb məʃ kull məɾɾ-a n-ħfəɾ-u ħufr-a ʒdi:d-a
 \ge NEG.CONT every time-F 1-dig\IPFV-PL hole-F new-F
 \rx PTCL QNT N-PNG PNG-V-PNG N-PNG ADJ-PNG
 \ft We don't dig a hole every time

NEG.IRR It is used in Moroccan Arabic for the irrealis negative particle la, which is only used in negative imperatives, and for the negation adverb:

[MA] \mb la j-mʃi: = ʃ
 \ge NEG.IRR 3SG.M-go\IPFV = NEG
 \rx PTCL PNG-V = CL
 \ft Do not let him go!

OBJ First person singular suffixed pronoun when verb object:

PASS Passive. It is used for passive participles PTCP.PASS, or to indicate passive verb forms:

[MA] \mb məʃu:r
 \ge bewitched\PTCP.PASS.SG.M
 \rx VN
 \ft bewitched

Contrary to Moroccan Arabic, PASS is only used in combination with PTCP in Tripoli Arabic and it is not used to indicate the verb passive forms:

[TA] \ref AYL_CP_NARR_02_070
 \mb məʃnu:ʕ-a m = əl = lo:ħ
 \ge make\PTCP.PASS-F from = DEF = wood

[MA] \mb ga:ləs ya:k?
 \ge sit_down\PTCP.ACT.SG.M Q.TAG
 \rx VN PTCL
 \ft He’s sitting down, isn’t he?

REAL Imperfective preverb. In Moroccan Arabic, ka = / ta = (and other variants) are used with the imperfective to indicate present simple, repetition and concomitance. They are glossed as REAL (realis mood) on the \ge tier:

[MA] \mb ka = j-mʃi:-u
 \ge REAL = 3-go\IPFV-PL
 \rx TAM = PNG-V-PNG
